Summary

This summer I left my corporate job to seek deeper career engagement and reinvention. Now I'm a freshly minted graduate of NYCDA's 12-week Web Development Intensive program. I get a lot of satisfaction out of putting my skills into practice, the mental stimulation of digging into the documentation, and the excitement of accomplishing projects in tight time frames.

Projects

On-Board

<http://github.com/nkabrown/On-Board>

On-Board was designed to enhance student experience prior to beginning the Web Development Intensive program at New York Code + Design Academy. It provides a platform for students to engage in prep-work and connect with classmates via LinkedIn, Twitter, Tumblr and Github. The app was built with consideration for the administrator's needs — providing an easily navigatable dashboard and email invitation system.

Habitual

<http://github.com/nkabrown/habitual>

Wouldn't you love to be predisposed to act in ways that furthered goals that are important to you? Habitual is an app that introduces users to Stanford scientist BJ Fogg's behavior-change methodology he calls Tiny Habits. This app helps its users to set goals, commit to small steps, and link those steps to their already established daily routines.
